FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ottawa, ON, November 18, 2010 – Representatives from the engineering profession, academia and government gathered in Ottawa for a one-day summit entitled Maximizing Opportunities: Increasing Women's Participation in Science and Engineering. Organized by the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada (NSERC) and supported by Engineers Canada and Research in Motion (RIM), this first event allowed participants to examine what is being done to attract and retain women to engineering and other scientific careers. During the event, Engineers Canada Chief Executive Officer Chantal Guay, ing., P.Eng., M.Env., pledged her organization's ongoing support to NSERC in attracting and retaining more women to engineering, highlighting the efforts of the organization's in the area of women in engineering.

In addition, a report issued by NSERC entitled Women in Science and Engineering in Canada was presented at the summit.

Following the summit, leaders in engineering and science met with Prime Minister Stephen Harper and shared some of the outcomes of the day.
